My research interests lie in the field of monetary theory, macro-finance, and monetary policy.

I hold an MSc in Economics from University of Vienna (major: mathematical track) and a BSc in Business, Economics and Social Sciences from WU Vienna (major: Economics). I am a visiting researcher at the UC Berkeley Economics Department from Sept – Dec 2022, and have yet to finish my BA in Philosophy.

Before starting my PhD, I was Research Analyst at the European Central Bank's Monetary Policy Research Division. I have also been consulting both the ECB and the United Nations on issues of (unconventional) monetary policy. As of July 2022, I will be joining the Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies as an economist part-time.

With some spillover to my work, I am also interested in cybernetics, bees, accounting, and interior design.
