

Associate Professor or Professor in Leadership and Organization

- Call for expressions of interest

Department of Organization (IOA), Copenhagen Business School invites expressions of interest for a full-time faculty position as Associate or full Professor in Leadership and Organization.

Application deadline: 1 October 2023

Starting date: First part of 2024

In announcing a position in leadership and organization, the department wishes to strengthen leadership in an organizational context as a field of interest at the department. The candidate is expected to contribute to developing the new CBS Leadership Centre. We seek candidates that would be excited to develop the following areas: 1) Research in leadership and organization; 2) Teaching in leadership and organization in bachelor, master, and PhD programs and in executive education 3) Collaboration and outreach regarding leadership and organization in accordance with CBS's "Transforming society with business"-strategy.

Examples of research areas that the position might cover:

- Leadership and organizational change
- Leadership and value creation
- Leadership and responsibility
- Leadership and professionals
- Transformational leadership
- Collective leadership
- Leadership and diversity
- Leadership of private-, public-, and nonprofit organizations
- Leadership and organization in digital-, and green transitions

The Department of Organization (IOA) pursues a problem-oriented, business in society approach to understanding and intervening in organizations and organizational life. Our research is focused upon organizing processes and their outcomes, and driven by an interest in organization and management as a practical, situated, contested and changing matter. Our approach is interdisciplinary and combines social-scientific traditions such as organization theory, sociology, ethnography, political economy, and social psychology. Methodologically, our research is predominantly qualitative and often involves case study and fieldwork methodology.
