Invitation to the Conference

Value Added Tax and Direct Taxation – Similarities and Differences

International Network for Tax Research (INTR) Conference
March 26 – 28, 2009

Organized by the Institute for Austrian and International Tax Law, WU Vienna and the Institute for VAT Research at Stockholm University at

WU Vienna University of Economics and Business
Augasse 2-6
1090 Vienna, AUSTRIA

Consumption taxes (such as VAT or GST) are generally very different from direct taxes. For this reason, research in these two areas of tax law has mostly been done separate from each other for the past decades. Some issues, however, appear to be very similar in both fields of law, especially when it comes to international matters. It therefore seems useful to identify and discuss similarities and differences, as well as to evaluate how solutions in one field can be used for the other. Consumption taxes will serve as starting point for this purpose.

This conference aims at enhancing knowledge and providing ideas for consumption taxation as well as direct taxation by bringing together experts from both sides to discuss similarities and differences of these two fields of law. The discussion will be based on papers submitted by academics as well as practitioners and representatives of various tax administrations and will focus on identifying what both sides can learn from each other. The papers will be distributed before the conference. Participants are expected to read all the papers before the conference. The papers will not be presented at the conference. Each segment of the conference will be introduced by an input statement of a discussant who will critically comment on the papers of the segment, in order to stimulate lively discussions.

The group of participants will be rather small in order to enable an interesting exchange of thoughts. Therefore only a limited number of participants will be admitted. All participants must have expertise in direct and/or indirect tax law either from a practical or an academic perspective. We kindly invite researchers of any nationality to apply for participation.
