

Social Media Netiquette rules

WU Vienna's social media channels are a place where we would like to communicate and interact with you. We are happy to discuss different topics and to receive your praise and critical feedback about our content. Please note, however, that all comments on our pages are public. We would like to ask everyone to use a tone that is friendly and respectful. Everybody has the right to express their opinion freely – within the limits of the law.

The following types of contributions are not tolerated on our social media channels:

- Insults, threats, and slurs of any kind
- Incitement of violence
- Radicalism, especially right-wing extremism, racism, and hate speech
- Discrimination and xenophobia
- Pornography and obscenity
- Violations of rights of third parties
- Calls to participate in campaigns or rallies or to make donations
- Comments unrelated to the topic of the respective post
- Links to external websites not related to the original post
- The publication of private correspondence and private data (addresses, email addresses, or telephone numbers)
- Election and political party advertising, misuse of the comment function for other advertising purposes

In short: Please no spamming, no trolling, no bashing!

We reserve the right to delete comments that violate our netiquette rules and block the corresponding users. Users are personally responsible for the contributions they publish. WU does not assume any liability for user contributions. We reserve the right to modify these netiquette rules at any time.

Thank you for your cooperation!
