

Affidavit of First Language

A first language is considered to be the language first learned; for persons raised bilingually, it is considered to be the more dominant of the two languages.

The entire Bachelor's Program in Business and Economics at Vienna University of Economics and Business, as well as the preceding selection procedure, are held in English. It is imperative that applicants have active and passive English language skills of level B2 or higher, according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages, to be able to successfully complete the program.

I, the undersigned, have read and understood the information given above and do hereby declare that English is my first language.

Date and location

Signature

Name printed in block capitals

The accuracy of this statement is substantiated by the following official confirmation (e.g. from a municipal authority, university, school, embassy, etc.).

Date and location

Signature and official stamp

Name printed in block capitals

This affidavit, complete with official confirmation, is acceptable as proof of language proficiency pursuant to § 4 (3) item 4 of the Specification of the Selection Procedure for Admission to the Bachelor's Program in Business and Economics.

