

Sales contract:

Source: Designed by Fatimah Aly

- When customers enter a retail shop, the salesperson advises them about the products.
- Either the customer is not interested in buying and leaves the shop, or he/she is interested in buying a specific product.
- When the customer selects a product, it is checked whether it is available in the warehouse or not. If not, it will be ordered. As a result, a sale contract is concluded. For example, in an electronics shop.

